WHAT TO DO. WHERE TO GO. WHERE TO PLAY.

Dan's Best of the Best Celebration Concert

NOVEMBER 2, 7:30 P.M.

Prepare to be blown away by legendary East End singer and New Life Crisis frontman Paul Mahos in his latest masterpiece performance, "Above and Beyond! A Galactic Journey of Legends." Witness as he brings to life the biggest names in music—David Bowie, George Michael, Prince and many surprises—through the power of multimedia displays and vocals like you've never heard before.

Grab your tickets now and join in this monumental celebration of the East End, and all the people and businesses that make it the best of the best place to live and to visit year-round. In the spirit of honoring the East End's best, a portion of ticket proceeds will benefit local veterans through the Riverhead VFW Post 2476 Van Rensselaer Skidmore.

General admission concert tickets are $25 or, if still available, $40 at the door. Use code BOTB for special two-person and four-person ticket packages available online at BOTBConcert.com. VIP Admission is $250 and includes a reserved table for four in the VIP Balcony plus an exclusive VIP gift bag and bottle of local wine.

SOUTH O' THE HIGHWAY ...AND NORTH, TOO

Marking the centenary of the Armistice of World War I, Sony Masterworks has released Igor Stravinsky's The Soldier's Tale with New Narration Adapted and Performed by Roger Waters, a recording of Stravinsky's theatrical chamber work by the rock legend and seven musicians from the Bridgehampton Chamber Music Festival. This release (available on CD and vinyl LP as well as on download platforms) not only marks the centenary of the composition of this masterpiece, but also offers a vibrant new version of the narration by local resident and Pink Floyd founder Roger Waters. The project began more than 10 years ago as a collaboration between Waters and Bridgehampton Chamber Music Festival Founder and Artistic Director Marya Martin.

East Hamptonite Nathan Lane will be honored at A Musical Celebration of Broadway, the Drama League's 35th Annual Benefit Gala, on November 5. Bridgehampton's Matthew Broderick, Lane's Producers co-star, will host the event at New York's Plaza Hotel. Lane, a multiple Tony Award winner, next returns to Broadway in Gary: A Sequel to Titus Andronicus.

Jerry Seinfeld's going back to the Beacon. The East Hampton comedian will return to New York's Beacon Theatre for a new comedy residency. Seinfeld's last residency at the famed venue ran from January 2016 to December 2017, and included 36 sold-out shows. The new series kicks off January 11.

On the small screens: Water Mill's Jennifer Lopez is bringing a new show to NBC. Major, a dramatic series described as Fame meets A Chorus Line, takes place at a competitive college dance department. Lopez, whose World of Dance competition show was just renewed by NBC for a third season, will serve as producer for Major. Katie Couric fans were delighted—and surprised—last week when Couric co-hosted Good Day New York. The longtime Hamptons resident joined friend Rosanna Scotto for Monday's show, and the pair brought in some of their favorite guests for the occasion, including South Forkers Brooke Shields, Bobby Flay and Billy Joel. MasterChef Junior: Celebrity Showdown is coming this Thanksgiving—November 22, post football—with special guests and a charity cookoff competition. The show will feature Terrence Howard, Eric Stonestreet, Lil Rel Howery, Alyson Hannigan, Jerry Rice and Emmitt Smith, plus Martha Stewart exchanging holiday recipes with Chef Gordon Ramsey. Chef Aarón Sánchez, along with children of the competitors, as well as former MasterChef Junior participants will also appear.

DOWN IN THE TUBE

Author Colson Whitehead was spotted traveling on the subway from Bridgehampton to Sag Harbor on Tuesday morning, reading a book. Hillary Clinton was seen carrying a Suffolk County absentee voter ballot on the subway heading from Georgica to East Hampton last Monday. David Koch and his brother Charles were seen traveling from Southampton to Mecox on Friday morning, talking shop.

HALLOWEEN CANDY SLOWDOWN

As always, any kid under the age of 12 in a spooky costume on Halloween was allowed to use the subway system for free October 31. With all the holiday decorations subway management puts up on the platforms and through the tunnels, it was quite the day: little ghosts, goblins and other creatures pranced about. We do hope that the parents who lost track of their youngsters were ultimately reunited. We had chaperones on all the platforms to help with this.

As in past years, all the Halloween candy the kids spilled as they walked around with their candy bags was swept down onto the tracks so nobody would slip and fall on the platforms. And, as in past years, the subway trains were in slowdown mode the next morning as the candy on the tracks all got crunched down into a sweet mash by the train wheels.

We apologize for the slowdown—so it took a few more minutes for a train to get from one station to the next—and we also apologize to the people of Water Mill, who suffered incorrect decorations. All the company's decorations are removed from storage during the fall and winter holidays and it was just unfortunate that our crew in Water Mill put up the Christmas decorations rather than the Halloween decorations. What were they thinking?

SANDY REPAIRS NOT EVEN BEGUN

As was reported in Newsday yesterday, the single repair that needed to be made after Hurricane Sandy roared through has not even been scheduled. Sandy was six years ago. And what was to be done? Hamptons Subway has a simple anti-flooding system to deal with flooding from storms such as Sandy. The alarm sounds and the system, which consists of a giant rubber plug six feet in diameter sitting on the tunnel floor at the lowest point in the subway system—the floor of the curve that goes under Trout Pond—is put into effect. As a hurricane nears, the plug gets pulled up (it's kept nearby with a huge chain attachment).

So any floodwaters flow out like they would when you pull the plug on a bathtub. In the event, six years ago, workmen sent down to remove it found it was jammed into the drain—and it was only because Sandy floodwaters never got up to the tunnel under Trout Pond that no flooding occurred. This plug today is still jammed into the drain. Money was allocated for the plug's removal, cleaning, trim and re-installment, but paperwork has held things up. There has been a delay in paperwork to get the job done. Hamptons Subway officials say it will all be done next week.

NEW PROMOTION

Hamptons Subway management is taking reservations now for those who wish to hold their weddings in June of 2020. We are booked on every platform until then. Wedding ceremonies can be held from 2 a.m. when the system shuts down for the night, and must be over by 5 a.m.

COMMISSIONER ASPINALL'S MESSAGE

Hamptons Subway is pledged to providing proper service without any delays for November and December, 2018. We've made this pledge every year. This time we mean it.

POLICE DECLINE TO PURSUE PUMPKIN SMASHERS

In the wake of a rash of pumpkin smashings across the South Fork over the last few weeks, concerned residents, including many whose own pumpkins had been smashed in the pre-Halloween mischief, are confronting the Hamptons Police over perceived inaction on the part of their officers. At a police-hosted talkback session on Thursday, Janet Kurbis, an East Hampton homeowner, claimed that she had contacted the department when she found the pumpkins from her curbside Halloween display mutilated on her driveway and received a chilly response.

"The officer wanted to know why I was leaving pumpkins by the side of the road!" explained an outraged Kurbis to the talkback committee. "The officer said to me that if I insisted on leaving my pumpkins unprotected in a semi-public place, then I should expect them to get smashed. Then she hung up the phone! I was totally astonished."

Hamptons Police spokesman Larry Hirsch, who was presiding over the talkback, took the opportunity presented by Kurbis's complaint to detail the Hamptons Police new, experimental crime fighting policies. "Our strategy in dealing with the pumpkin smashing was a kind of a trial run for what we see as a new technique," Hirsch explained. "For too long, people have been overly reliant upon the police to respond to wrongdoing. What this has meant is that people go about their day-to-day business in a completely unprotected manner, feeling that the police will come to their rescue if anything should happen. This has meant an incredible expending of resources—time, energy, money, training—on our part when a lot of what we do is dealing with problems that could easily have been prevented." According to Hirsch, the police inaction on pumpkin smashing was just a preview of a future of inaction on multiple fronts.

"We're calling it Operation Kickback," said Hirsch. The object, according to literature distributed at the talkback, is to train the public to take responsibility for avoiding crime. "It's pretty simple, really. Just as you wouldn't be wise to venture down a dark alley in a dangerous part of town, so you wouldn't be smart to leave your car unlocked. This will train people to be smarter about avoiding crime." Operation Kickback takes the idea of crime prevention one step further than similar programs by removing the police from the equation. "From now on, if your car gets stolen, that's on you. There's a lot of ways to avoid that happening, after all."

Participants in the talkback accused the Hamptons Police of adopting a "blame the victim" mentality, but Hirsch scoffed at the notion. "Smart people don't become victims," he said, and brought the session to a close.

When in the Course of Human Events It Becomes Necessary...

REVOLUTION

BY DAN RATTINER

On Tuesday, October 16, 2018, just 242 years and 104 days after the United States declared its independence from Great Britain, leaders from the eastern end of Long Island declared their independence from the United States of America. The announcement was made on the front steps of the Southampton Town Hall—which will be rechristened as the new nation's capital—at noon.

Hear ye, hear ye, the Town Crier shouted, ringing his bell to quiet the huge crowd that had assembled. Ezekiel Smith, the chairman of the new nation's First Assembly, spoke.

"By the power that has been vested in me by the First Assembly, I hereby announce a declaration stressing our independence. I ask that you all declare your allegiance to your new nation, the Windmill Antilles. In recent years, the United States has had its way with us. Heavy taxation has been imposed upon us. What we get in return is just brutal repression. Also, not enough parking. We've had it up to here. The last straw was the announcement last week that the American government, by its inaction, will not step in to stop the sale of Deepwater Wind's offshore windfarm company—which will soon be providing power to our homes—to a country that we East Enders consider a hostile power: Denmark. The sale will provide Deepwater Wind half a billion dollars. We believe it will give Orsted, the Danish company with known ties to other foreign nations, the ability—with just the press of a button—to cut off the power to the East End. We will not let that happen to our people—and so we take matters into our own hands."

The new nation has been given its two names because the word "Windmill" refers to the scattering in these communities of the largest collection of old English windmills in North America, and "Antilles" because, like the Dutch Antilles in the Caribbean, it consists of a series of islands.

At the announcement in front of the new Capitol building in Southampton, Chairman Smith unveiled the new Windmill Antilles flag. Ten stars are arrayed in the form of a fishtail, one star representing each island. The stars are gold. The background is blue.

Here are the states, big and small, that are included in the new country.

1. Star Island: Sits in the middle of Lake Montauk and is accessible either by boat to the marinas on that island or at Gurney's Montauk Yacht Club, or by a causeway that attaches to the Montauk fishing village. Population 116. The Star Island Coast Guard Station will be taken over by the Windmill Antilles navy to be a port for its ships. Population 144.

2. Shelter Island: Sits between Greenport and Sag Harbor, accessible only by ferry. There are three golf courses on this little island, and they will be requisitioned by the Windmill Antilles government to become recreational facilities for government workers. Population 1,463.

3. Plum Island: Off the coast of Orient Point, which, because it is currently an off-limits animal research facility, will be the new training camp for the Army. Dogs will guard the camp. Population 84.

4. Gardiner's Island: Off the coast of East Hampton, which will be taken over and made into a farm operation to provide fruits and vegetables for the citizenry. This island is currently owned by members of the Gardiner family, who have owned it since the first settler there, Lion Gardiner, came over from Connecticut in 1639. The Manor House on Gardiner's Island will be the "White House" for our first president, who will be elected by popular vote next month. Population: 82.

5. North Haven: Connected to Sag Harbor by the Lance Corporal Jordan C. Haerter Veterans Memorial Bridge. North Haven's ample woods and forests will provide the lumber for all the new construction in the Windmill Antilles. Population 1,812.

6. The South Fork: This large entity is connected to the mainland by several bridges that cross the Shinnecock Canal. All will be cut, and access across the canal will be provided by ferryboat with customs officials' offices on the eastern shore. The eastern tip of the South Fork is the Montauk Lighthouse. Population 53,812.

Because of its large size, the South Fork will be divided into nine Provinces: Montauk, East Hampton, Bridgehampton, Sagaponack, Noyac, Mecox, Water Mill, Shinnecock and Sag Harbor, each with its own provincial flags and provincial government centers. The Province of the Shinnecock Nation will house the facility for the creation, warehousing and issuing of the new Windmill Antilles currency, the Wampum.

7. Robin's Island: A private island in Peconic Bay was owned until now by Wall Street's Louis Bacon, and it is to be turned into a preserve for birds and animals of the Windmill Antilles. Population 5.

8. Cartright Shoal: A small island only a hundred yards long, south of Gardiner's Island in what is now Gardiner's Bay, and by deed owned by the Gardiner family (the deed says they own as far offshore of their islands as an ox can get by walking until the water is up to the underside of his stomach). Cartright Shoal will become a gun installation and fortress for the Windmill Antilles Marines. Population 0.

9. Fisher's Island: This is a little-known island just off the coast of Connecticut near Mystic that is currently part of the State of New York and administered by Southold. The merry band of 142 locals who live on this island (and provide services to a summer community of about 300) have unanimously voted to be part of the Windmill Antilles. The WA government has accepted the application and will soon send a small military force there to protect its citizens from outraged New Englanders.

10. Block Island: This island, currently administered as part of Rhode Island, is eight miles off the coast of Montauk but also has voted to become part of the Windmill Antilles, although it was not unanimous. Indeed, some say the narrow victory by Windmill Antilles enthusiasts was rigged. Block Island already has five offshore turbines that provide power to all of the island. Put there by Deepwater Wind before the sale, there is one group that applauds socialist Denmark, the brutal Russians and the Communist Chinese, and another that abhors what might happen to the islanders under this new regime. If Block Islanders don't do the Danes' bidding, will the lights go out? The Windmill Antilles has accepted Block Island, but whether it will stay a state or revert back to Rhode Island remains to be seen. The Windmill Antilles is sending a battalion next month to keep order, but in the end we will accept whatever the Block Islanders wish after they have sorted everything out.

Meanwhile, young men and women: Join the Windmill Antilles Armed Forces. See the world. The Windmill Aunt Tillie Wants You.

For the moment, our flag has 10 gold stars. An application has come in from Fire Island, but has not been accepted into the Windmill Antilles just yet. Fire Island, year-round population 435, has no windmills, is disconnected from the Windmill Antilles by Westhampton Beach and has little else to redeem itself. It also might get swallowed up by the sea soon. So the flag is 10 stars and we will figure out if it's 9, 10 or 11 later and take appropriate action at that time.

As we go to press, we have learned that the North Fork of Long Island has applied to be part of the Windmill Antilles. It currently does not qualify, since it is firmly attached to Long Island, New York, the United States by actual land. But rebels say they will soon build a canal stretching from Northville to New Suffolk to let the water flow in, thus making it eligible for admission. Chairman Smith says we'll consider it when we see it.

Meanwhile, young men and women: Join the Windmill Antilles Armed Forces. See the world. Windmill Aunt Tillie Wants You.

Me & the Sports Car

For 50 Years, This Triumph TR-3 Has Seen Me Through Thick & Thin

BY DAN RATTINER

I am the proud owner of an antique sports car. It is a Triumph TR-3 built in 1959.

There are many well-to-do folks living in these parts who today buy a completely restored Austin Healey or MG or Triumph from the 1950s for a small fortune and proudly show it off. But I am not one of those. I bought my Triumph in 1967, when it was eight years old—a used car. I was 28. I got it from the owner of a bar in Hampton Bays that, until three years ago, still had the same name. It was CB's and it was on 27A, just west of Macy's. I met with Charlie Brown, the owner, out front of his bar, where he had a For Sale sign under the windshield wiper of this lovely sports car, paid him $800, and he signed it over. That would be about $8,000 in today's money.

Charlie told me at the time that he had gotten married and his wife was pregnant. End of sports car for him. Beginning of sports car for me. I subsequently married a woman who indulges me my sports car.

As it turns out, it is good for my health. I have found, over the years, that when the car gets sick, I get sick. And when the car gets fixed, I get fixed. Amazing. Today, the car is 59 years old. I am 79 years old. We've been through a lot together.

I do not intend to bore you with details of my personal maladies. We all have them from time to time, some serious, some not so much. But I can tell you about the Triumph's maladies and at least one of mine. You'll read about it down the road.

As for the car, in 1975, I was out back at our Dan's Papers office in Bridgehampton to show a friend my little sports car and how healthy it was.

"Never had a repair," I told him. It was true. "I was told these English sports cars need constant repair. But this has never had a repair."

"You got lucky," my friend said.

"I'll start it up so you can hear the vroom of the engine," I said. "First you pull out the choke. Then, you turn the key but don't press the starter button—yes, here's the starter button. Instead, with the key on, you pump the gas pedal 20 times in a row to bring the gas near to the spark plugs."

I pumped the gas pedal and was about to press the starter button when the pedal lever broke. The pedal just flopped around.

"Dammit," I said, hopping out.

I got sick after that. When I got the pedal fixed, I got better. Didn't notice the connection back then. It's only been in hindsight.

In 1985, still without a major repair, I noticed a jingle in the rear right wheel. I took it to a mechanic.

"Your car needs ball joints," he said. "It's expensive. Didn't you notice the car wanders all over the road? You steer one way, it goes another?"

"I thought it was just fine doing that," I said.

"I have to get you new ball joints. Can't even let you out on the road without them. It's dangerous."

Later that month, I got a bone spur in my right shoulder and needed surgery to have it removed. Dr. Brennan in Southampton did it. After I recovered, I found the Triumph able to go smoothly down the road.

In 1990, I was in a parking lot in Sag Harbor, made a turn and hit the back end of a Lincoln. The Lincoln was fine, but the Triumph's hood and fender were messed up.

A few weeks later, I was diagnosed with cancer and had major surgery at NYU in Manhattan.

While I was in the hospital, the Triumph's dents were taken out. Looked like new. Still looks new today. I'm told it's probably worth $30,000 as is today. Maybe so. I'm worth more, too. I've been cancer free since the surgery all those years ago.

But this spring, the spring of 2018, the engine of the Triumph began overheating after just 10 miles. I'd have to stop and let it cool. I took it to a foreign car specialist who told me the engine needed to be rebuilt and he could get it done for $3,000 or $4,000. I told him go ahead.

Before he did, however, he sent me a list of many other repairs that needed to be done before he would rebuild the engine, including things that were just old and worn. I'd need a new transmission, a new clutch, new brakes, new tires, a new frame because the old had developed a crack. I'd need to pay him $13,000 to $15,000 before he'd even start on the engine.

I told him forget it. It drives fine, just needs a rest. I drove it home. He sent me a bill for making the list of things needing to be fixed before he could start on the engine—I never asked for this estimate. And I refused to pay it.

This spring, I too began to have lots of problems. My back started giving me problems. Became hard of hearing a bit. My pace is slower. My hip hurts. On my next birthday, I will be 80. I went to a doctor and he ordered some tests.

In early summer, things took a turn for the worse with the Triumph. Driving back from a family dinner at a house on Further Lane in East Hampton in June, the car simply rolled to a stop. Turn the key. Nothing. It was something electrical. I called to have the car towed and waited. It was a long wait. After 20 minutes, I tried again and it started. So I cancelled the tow and drove it home. On my next outing with it, the electric went off again. I was stranded on Abrahams Path in front of somebody's house. I was there an hour waiting for the tow. The homeowner, seeing this beautiful red sports car sitting out front of her house not moving, came out with some cold lemonade. We sat on a porch and talked about the old days. And then when the tow people came, I thought it a surprise. I'd forgotten I'd ordered it. So, before the wrecker guy hooked up the car I told him how it starts up again if you wait a while, so we tried, and vroom, it did start up, so once again I drove it home. The next day, I brought the woman a big apple pie from Round Swamp Farm.

But now the Triumph just sat. All summer, I wouldn't drive it. I was doing a lot of sitting, too. What was wrong with me? Once, in late summer, I did start up the Triumph, intending to drive it down the driveway and back. My 12-year-old grandson from San Francisco was visiting. He got in. I started it up and grinned, drove it down to the end of the driveway and was turning around when it quit again. This was so embarrassing. Just a 30-second drive. Anyway, I left it there a half an hour and then, without my grandson, started it up and drove it back up and into the garage.

Boy was it sick.

But I have a niece, a serious car mechanic who owns a garage where she repairs old cars in Oakland, California. I called her. She said mice might have chewed into the wiring. Or maybe there's corrosion. The wiring works fine at first, she said, but then the wires heat up and it short circuits. Have somebody replace the wiring under the dashboard where it connects to the stuff under the hood.

A new tow guy from Amagansett came and picked up the car. It was from Balcun's. At his shop, Vinnie Balcun fixed the wiring, test drove it 20 miles with an engine additive called STP without it overheating, and it's back in my garage, raring to go, all fixed.

It turns out I'm now fine, too. Tests were negative. Yes, we're getting old. But I guess it's just not our time yet, eh, buddy? Just a little jingle in the right rear tire.

Thanks, Vinnie.

Trump Press Conference

What He Said, as Seen and Read Through a Bank Window

BY DAN RATTNER

I am standing on a street corner in Manhattan in front of a bank, waiting for the Hampton Jitney to arrive. I am about 10 minutes early. The Jitney leaves right on time. So I get there early.

While I wait, I look through the bank window to a flat-screen TV inside on a far wall. On this TV, our President can be seen sitting at his desk, conducting a press conference. Behind him, standing silently, are generals and other officials. Mostly the focus is on the President. So the generals and the others get to be seen mostly from the necks down. On the screen are ties and medals. Can't see who's who.

I also can't hear what is being said, but closed captioning is on and so Trump makes a gesture and nods and scowls or smiles and says something and then I read what he says.

I mention this because I don't want you to think I've got this down exactly. But here goes.

"This refugee caravan will not be allowed in. There are Islamic terrorists in this caravan. They are a direct threat to the American people. And I will defend the American people from terrorists and others who will do us harm at all costs. Yes, Jed?"

"Do you know for a fact there are Islamic terrorists in this caravan?"

"Yes. I know it for a fact." Trump turns to a neck-down person standing alongside him. "Mike, can I tell them? Is it classified? Is it okay to tell them? Yes? Okay, you tell them."

Mike Pence: "I spoke to the President of Honduras last night and he told me there are terrorists in this caravan. Also the President of Guatemala. The terrorists organized this caravan."

"So you know it for a fact?"

"Yes. It stands to reason. There are 7,000 people in this caravan. When you have that many people, and our border patrol tells us how many Islamic terrorists they have arrested crossing the border since January, which is 80, you can do the math and there are bound to be terrorists in there."

Trump: "And murderers and drug dealers. And you know there are good people, too. But there are disabled people and old people, and they can't keep up, so they drop by the wayside and this caravan just moves on, leaving them by the side of the road. It's horrible. They don't even care about these people. George?"

"So you know for a fact the terrorists organized this caravan?"

"Yes. We know it for a fact. And the Democrats. They organized it too. Phil?"

(Laughter.)

"Is this immediate 10% tax reduction for the middle class you are proposing, isn't it just politics, posing it right now, two weeks before the election?"

Trump: "We gave them a big tax break before. Huge. We did a lot for them. But now, the economy is going so good, it's even better. So we can give them another 10%. We couldn't do it before. We gave them all we could at that time. But now we find there's more. So now we give them more. I will have it proposed on Monday. Then, right after the election in two weeks, Congress will pass it into a law. Fred?"

"What about Saudi Arabia and the Khashoggi assassination?"

"Horrible. Worst cover-up in the history of cover-ups. I will leave it up to Congress to decide what to do. It should be bipartisan. I think we can get the Democrats and the Republicans to agree on what to do, don't you think? They'll tell me what they think. And then we'll see what happens."

I look up the street. The Jitney is arriving, five minutes early. It will leave right on time. It always does. The door is opening. I'm walking over.

Mr. Trump is still yammering away. So I don't know what he said after this. And this is my report. (Laughter.)

Steinbeck Park Variances

The New Park on the Waterfront in Sag Harbor Gets Needed Approval

JOHN STEINBECK WATERFRONT PARK PLAN FOR SAG HARBOR, COURTESY EDMUND HOLLANDER

BY DAN RATTINER

The deal to create the new John Steinbeck Waterfront Park in Sag Harbor has cleared its biggest hurdle. Last week, the Village of Sag Harbor Zoning Board of Appeals approved nine variances that will allow the creation of a three-luxury-apartment townhouse just to the west of what will become the park. The lot that will be shared by the townhouses, and the Village required resolving a complicated interlocking series of parcels owned by either Southampton Town (and managed by Sag Harbor Village) or the developer of the townhouses, Jay Bialsky. One side of the land, the larger parcel, will be the park on a curving sand beach. The other side will be the townhouses.

Specifically, the new townhouse building will be three stories high and as a whole occupy 26,077 square feet. The apartments are huge, from 10,224 square feet down to, for the little one, 8,750 square feet. Indeed, each of the three will be a lavish affair with many bedrooms and bathrooms. As waterfront, they will surely be priced for many millions, maybe tens of millions of dollars. People who own them might also own one of the 150-foot yachts that often dock at the nearby Long Wharf in the summertime.

The height of this building—it is actually two adjacent buildings with a breezeway for a view of the bay from the street—will be 44.5 feet, 9.5 feet higher than the zoning allows, thus the need for one of the variances. This is high, but there is a precedent for it. It stands on the site now. Slated to be torn down, this building was built 30 years ago as a three-story motel of 11,000 square feet, which ultimately went out of business. Subsequently, it became a private residence, and it is now abandoned.

A lot of thought and discussion went into this. With the parcel, about 2.5 acres, undevelopable unless a compromise could be worked out to divide it in two, neither the village nor the developer could proceed. It is a testament to the determination to compromise between developer Jay Bialsky and the Village to make it so.

The project needs a wetlands permit, an architectural review board approval, a site plan approval from the planning board and a building permit.

The curving arc of a beach is along a part of this property. A stalemate about it had been going on for years and years, and during that time it stood as a landlocked piece of land covered with weeds, right down across the curving beach and the waterline.

At one point, about three years ago, a New York City group called Greystone Property Development presented the Village with a plan that would not have resulted in the new park. They had a plan to create 13 smaller townhouses, each about 2,800 square feet in size, that would in a series of two-story-high buildings spread out to occupy almost the entire property, providing waterfront for the occupants of the townhouses and with a small strip of adjacent public land.

Further approvals remain. The project needs a wetlands permit, an architectural review board approval, a site plan approval from the planning board and a building permit. But the biggest hurdle was the zoning variances, now approved.

Jay Bialsky, in this compromise, will have a setback on part of the third floor so it won't look as high as three stories from the street, a minimal parking situation for his three units' owners, a total coverage 75% less dense than the whole parcel would allow under grandfathered zoning, the giving-up of an allowed three-unit commercial use structure and a building smaller than the one proposed by Greystone in their last proposal. The park will occupy the larger half of the property.

Landscape architect Edmund Hollander has designed the amenities of the upcoming park, named after Pulitzer Prize winning novelist John Steinbeck, who lived in town. The land where the park will be has been cleared, new topsoil has been brought in and this park seems ready to go. Plans include pedestrian walkways, fishing and a small boat pier, a beach and links by both land and water to Windmill Park, Long Wharf and the park at Bay Street. The finish line to this happy story is just a few approvals away.

Last week, East Hampton's Sean "Diddy" Combs donated $1 million to Capital Prep Harlem, the charter school he founded in 2016. He also announced plans to open Capital Prep Bronx, which will serve 160 sixth- and seventh-grade students before expanding to 650 students over the next several years. Said Combs in a statement, "I came from the same environment these kids live in every day. I understand the importance of access to a great education, and the critical role it plays in a child's future."

Shelter Island's Simon Doonan hosted the Fashion Group International's Night of Stars last week. Of the industry, Barneys' Creative Ambassador explained, "fashion today is a glorious paradox: Smart and idiotic. Beautiful and ugly. Inclusive and exclusive. Goofy and elegant. Deeply flawed but also fabulously perfect." Guests of the event, held at Cipriani Wall Street, included Hamptonites Calvin Klein and Vera Wang.

Oceania Cruises has unveiled the first enhancements coming to the line's 1,250-guest ships Marina and Riviera—a new generation of owner's suites furnished exclusively with Ralph Lauren Home. The intent in showcasing the Montauk designer's work is, of course, to highlight the American brand's mix of modern luxury and timeless style in home furnishings, lighting, fabric and accessories, along with the carefully curated art selection. Meanwhile, Ralph Lauren is working with London skater label Palace in the American brand's first streetwear partnership.

Southampton's Tory Burch recently released the ToryTrack Gigi Touchscreen Smartwatch, which fuses fashion and function, by bringing digital features with old-school analog sensibility.

The South Fork Natural History Museum (SoFo) will host a talk by primatologist, anthropologist and conservationist Dr. Patricia Wright on Saturday, November 3. The talk, "The Lost Rainforest of Crystal Mountain, Madagascar," will focus on Wright's 1986 journey to Madagascar, in which she and her colleagues discovered a new species of lemur. And how these scientists had to become conservationists when the rainforest was threatened by timber exploitation.

HONORING the ARTIST

This Week's Cover Artist: Daniel Pollera

Painter Daniel Pollera is being inducted into the Dan's Best of the Best Hall of Fame for 2018 on Friday, November 2. The artist's iconic work captures the vast scope and beauty of Long Island, and this week's cover is no exception. See more of Pollera's work at danielpollera.com, at William Ris Gallery in Jamesport and Sorelle Gallery in New Canaan, CT.

What was the inspiration for "Eye of the Storm"?

What attracted me to paint this "House on Stilts" was the fact that it stood out by itself surrounded by water and had a weathered personality all its own. I have painted many of the south shore bay houses along the salt marsh of western Long Island, but this was a little different. For one, there were no salt marshes around and it was the only house, in the small old fishing community, that sat apart from the rest perched 40' from shore on pilings. It's almost as if it was asking to be painted, in a way, to show off its beauty in a style of any artist.

Your work seems to evoke a sense of stillness and calm. Can you talk a little about that?

Quiet and calm are incorporated in my work, whether on a sunny day or an evening fall sky. But that's not the only instance; there are times I look to project tension in my paintings with storm-filled skies and contrasting light. Some people might feel threatened or endangered by observing it; for me it's a composed feeling, especially with late fall skies.

How has the East End inspired your work?

The East End has a beautiful landscape with bays, the ocean and dunes. I love the whole characteristic of that environment and it's a large part of my life.

If you could sit down to coffee with any artist from history, who would it be and what would you talk about?

The last time I was asked that question, I said Edward Hopper. Admiring an artist's work is one thing and sitting down with them is another story. It's really a hard question for me so at this point I will stick with Hopper.

What else would you like readers to know about your work?

After many years of painting I'm at the point in my career where I'm reflecting my life on the canvas. Visions of my passions are incorporated into my paintings. I'm a passionate boater and fisherman with adoration for our entire coast and all that it has to offer. I submerge myself in its beauty to comprehend it better. It's what I love, and they say paint what you know and love.

Celebrate Dan's Best of the Best 2018 with the invite-only awards ceremony, followed by the Dan's Best of the Best Celebration Concert starring Paul Mahos on Friday, November 2. For tickets and more information, visit dansbotb.com.

Since the very first year in which votes were cast for Dan's Best of the Best, the public has chosen—originally via ballots printed in the paper, now exclusively online at DansBOTB.com and via the free Dan's Papers App—a select group of East End businesses, venues, events, performers and more as Dan's Best of the Best, a designation that has become a coveted and welcome honor for all who have won.

Over the years, some have won this title numerous times, so we instituted the Dan's Best of the Best Hall of Fame to pay specific homage to those who rise to the top of the list every year. To qualify for the Hall of Fame, you must have won 10 times in the past and must be presented for Hall of Fame consideration by both the general public and members of the East End business or arts community.

This year Dan's Hamptons Media is delighted to induct two new members into the Hall of Fame, both of whom we feel truly represent the Best of the Best.

CELEBRATING SIX ICONIC DECADES ON THE EAST END

ARE YOU READY TO BE PART OF HAMPTONS HISTORY?

It's coming up to a very special year for Dan's Papers. Unbelievably, 2019 will be our 60th summer (not to mention 80 for Dan Rattiner)! It's going to be a year full of special events and celebrations, and we're starting with a very, very special commemorative book—60 Summers: Celebrating Six Iconic Decades on the East End

We're taking our 60 favorite covers from over the years and mixing them with reminiscences of the Hamptons and Dan's Papers and publishing a limited edition book. Only 5,000 first editions are going to be printed (the first copies will be shipping before Christmas) and we want you to be part of it!

There are no ads in this book, just a list of names of folks who consider themselves "Friends of Dan's." We'll have page after page—in alphabetical order—of our clients and friends and admirers who want to stand up and show their appreciation for a true "Hamptons Original" in this amazing anniversary milepost.

We want to make it as easy as possible for our friends to show their support and be part of this historic event. You can be listed in the book's special "FRIENDS OF DAN'S" section any way you want (your name, your business's name, even Anonymous) AND you'll get one of the limited edition 60 Summers books. There are other packages available, just contact us!

Thanks for making Hamptons history with Dan's Papers and celebrating 60 Summers!

Visit FRIENDSOFDANS.COM

Email DISPLAY@DANSPAPERS.COM or Call 631-629-0841

A portion of proceeds from this book will go to support AFTEE (All for the East End).

The Hamptons Market Reports for Q3 2018

*The Hamps, the Hamps, we're a hell of a town
the prices are up but the sales are down.*

Pardon us while we burst into song. The third quarter results from the four big agencies that report are all in, and the broad results are as follows. Each report tends to focus on slightly different parts of the market, so results tend to be different from one another.

DOUGLAS ELLIMAN

Prices are up but properties are just sitting there. Median sales price in the third quarter of 2018 climbed 8.4% year over year to $965,000, but the number of sales dropped 13.3%. The biggest loser was the under $1 million market: sales dropped 21.5%. (Blame it on rising interest rates). As for the luxury market (the highest 10% of sales), the median price fell 3% to $5.561 million, and the number of sales slumped 13.5%.

TOWN & COUNTRY

T&C's report also showed a drop in under $1 million, with 10% fewer sales than the same quarter of 2017. For the Hamptons overall, the report shows prices and total sales volume about the same as last year, with a 14% rise in median price. Standout markets in this report include Hampton Bays, with a 135% expansion in total home sales volume, nearly 30% more home sales and a 19% increase in median home sales price, to $525,000. Amagansett boasted a median home price of $5.25 million, a 159% increase. (Though we hasten to point out these numbers for Amagansett are based on seven total sales over three months.)

CORCORAN

Corcoran, like T&C, saw stable sales in the Hamptons, with the number of sales up just 1% to 594 sales. Average price dipped 4%, but median price increased 1%. Sales from $2-$5 million were strong, but a decrease in sales over $10 million caused the luxury sales volume to decrease 11% year-over-year. Inventory increased slightly by 4%, basically the same as last year.

BROWN HARRIS STEVENS

At BHS as with Elliman, the report shows the number of sales is down and median prices increased. The total number of Hamptons sales dipped 15.7% (344 in 2018 versus 408 in 2017), and the total dollar volume decreased 17.8%. The average sales price declined 2.5% while the median price increased 14.8% to $1,033,000. 77% of sales in Q3 2018 were under $2 million. There were 22 sales over $5 million and 7 over $10 million. And, as with the T&C report, Amagansett saw fewer sales at higher prices, resulting in increased average prices.
